39. My dear son,

It seems like yesterday that we brought you home from the hospital, and now you are my little man. Your father and I were very nervous being first-time parents. I have been a mother for five years. When I look back these days, I can't help smiling.

Every milestone (里程碑) of yours was a kind of personal success for me. Your first smile, your first word, your first step... As years passed, things started to get very challenging (挑战). Sometimes I found myself in very difficult situations. The mess you made and the thousands of naughty things you did really stressed me out. The times I was worried the most were when you were sick.

Now I learn to deal^① them properly. The one thing that helped me through the hard times was your smile — it made me forget everything and realize it was all^② it.

Soon it was time for preschool (幼儿园). I prepared you as much as I could for that terrible first day, but you cried so much and I sat down and cried with you. After the first week, you felt better, but I still cried because I didn't want to let you go. But I want you to enjoy yourself, enjoy your schoolwork, make good friends and most important of all be a good man. The conflict (矛盾) has troubled me for a long time.

It is often said that students should learn scientific facts as well as how to prepare meals. The following will explain why schools should teach students cooking. Cooking is an important skill in life.

Schools should teach knowledge to the students so that they can lead successful independent lives when they are out of school. Also, they can go into the world knowing how to make a living.

Cooking helps discover future job.

When schools offer cooking lessons, students will show an interest in it and might take cooking as a job. ① This will give them the chance (机会) to practice their basic skills and be creative in the kitchen.

Cooking saves money

One of the main reasons why schools should teach cooking is that the students always use a lot of money to buy ready-made food, while in the real sense they could prepare a nice meal with less cost by only buying the needed ingredients (材料).

Cooking betters math learning.
