What is two inches tall, can hang in mid-air, and flies in every direction including backwards? It's not an insect. The answer is the bee hummingbird.

Most hummingbirds are about three to five inches long. But the bee hummingbird is only five centimeters, or about two inches, making it the smallest species of bird alive today. Really it isn't bigger than a large insect. But don't let its tiny body fool you. This bird is a strong flier. It can beat its wings up to 80 times per second. If you ever see one in flight, you'll notice its wings are just a blur to the human eye. Hummingbirds are also the only vertebrates (脊椎动物) that can hover in one place. Add to that being able to fly backwards and upside down, and these creatures are amazing flying machines.

And being a master flier isn't the only one of the bee hummingbird's talents. The bee hummingbird does a great job performing its part in plant reproduction (繁衍). During the course of a single day, the bee hummingbird can visit up to 1,500 flowers. And just like a bee, when the bee hummingbird drinks nectar from the flowers, pollen (花粉) is moved from the flower to the bird's body. This pollen is carried to the next flower. Moving pollen from one flower to another helps plants make seeds.

Besides drinking nectar, bee hummingbirds eat insects. In fact, they eat about half their body weight each day. But what's more impressive is that they drink eight times their body weight every day. This is why they live in areas where there are gardens and forests. These tiny birds are found mainly in Cuba, but some have been seen in Jamaica and Haiti as well.

Except for its size, there's no doubt that the bee hummingbird is a powerful flier.

29. What is true about bee hummingbirds?

- A. They all live in Cuba. B. They cannot fly upside down.
C. They are three to five inches long. D. They may be as small as some insects.

30. How do bee hummingbirds help flowering plants?

- A. They drink pollen in the flowers. B. They give the flowering plants energy.
C. They build their nests in flowering plants. D. They help flowering plants make seeds and reproduce.

31. If a bee hummingbird weighs 2 grams, how many grams will it drink in a day?

- A. 1 gram. B. 2 grams. C. 8 grams. D. 16 grams.

32. Where is the passage most probably from?

- A. A story book. B. A literary novel. C. A science magazine. D. A tourist guide.

Friendship

“Give me a dollar and I'll be your best friend.”

Madeline smiled as she said that to me.

She was so pretty and so popular,

With shiny brown hair and a confident smile.

I thought, “Everyone wants to be Madeline's friend.”

I was new to the school, and different, and shy.

I needed a friend, and she was the best!
My uncle had given me birthday money,
Crisp, new bills I was saving
For a playhouse my father would build
With a door and three windows—I could see it already—
A place just for me and a friend, if I wanted.
But I needed a friend, and here was my chance.
Next day in the schoolyard I gave her the dollar.
She flashed me that smile—or was it a laugh?—
And next thing I knew she had disappeared.
That’s when it hit me, the shame and the tears,
Which I couldn’t cry, or the whole school would know
How low I would go, that I needed a friend.
There she was laughing at me with her buddies.
If only the ground would swallow me up!
Luckily, summer was coming soon.
I wouldn’t see any of them till the fall.
Even the worst times come to an end,
And this year I made a new friend who
Likes me for me: still shy, kind of awkward,
Not good at sports, but sometimes funny.
Her smile is a real one, and of course,
She never asks me for money.

—Joan Kocsis

七、阅读填表

请认真阅读下列短文，并根据所读内容，在文章后 1—10 小题的空格里填入一个最恰当的单词。注意：每个空格只填 1 个单词。

When difficult people express themselves orally, they usually want at least two things: they are heard and they are understood. As a good communicator should be a good listener, five steps are towards good listening.

The first step is cooperating (合作). How does a difficult person know that you're listening and understanding? In fact, it's through the way you look and sound while he is talking. You may help him to fully express his thoughts and feelings. You do this by nodding your head in agreement, making certain sounds of understanding.

When the person begins to repeat what's been said, it's signal (信号) of Step two: turning back. It means that you repeat back some words he is using, sending a clear signal that you're listening carefully and that you think what he is saying is important.

Having heard what he has to say, the next step is clarifying. At this point, you start to gather information about what is being communicated. Ask some open-ended questions, which will allow you to find out what intention he is hoping to satisfy.

The fourth step is to summarize (概括) what you've heard. This allows you to make sure that both you and the difficult person are on the same page. When you do this, two things happen. First, if you've missed something, he can fill in the details. Second, if you've shown that you're making an effort to understand completely. This makes it more possible to gain cooperation from him.

Having listened carefully, you've now arrived at the point of confirming with the person that he feels satisfied that his thoughts have been fully voiced. Ask if he feels understood.

When enough sincere listening, questioning, and remembering are brought together, understanding is usually achieved and a difficult person becomes less difficult and more cooperative.
